Gateway Services.

When it comes to career paths, there's no point fitting 'square pegs into round holes'.

That's why BUSY At Work offers 'Gateway Services', a comprehensive program to evaluate a job seeker's abilities, interests, and motivations and assist them in finding the right career path.

Gateway Services supports people into career paths they are passionate about, ensuring a perfect match for employers, their business and the industry. Fitting 'round pegs into round holes'.

For job seekers, the service includes career exploration tools and pre-employment screening before deciding on further study, job placement or apprenticeship or traineeship pathways. We also provide ongoing support once commencing an apprenticeship or traineeship, with access to a tailored support plan.

For employers, BUSY At Work's Gateway Services offers no-cost recruitment services when sourcing an apprentice or trainee for your business. We identify the right people for the right job through screening, testing and suitability-matching, prior to sign-up.

BUSY At Work is an Apprenticeship Network Provider contracted by the Australian Government to deliver Australian Apprenticeship Support Network (AASN) Services. Our Gateway Services are contributing to successful outcomes for job seekers, businesses and industry.

Call us today to list your vacancy - 13 28 79.

As the largest GTO in the Great Southern Region, we need a reliable and prompt AASN service to ensure our apprentices and trainees are commencing in an informative and timely manner. We recommend this service to our clients that choose to employ their apprentices or trainees directly and benefit from this level of service themselves.

IN-TRAINING SUPPORT...

TAILORED FOR SUCCESS

Since every workplace is different, BUSY At Work offers In-Training Support for both employers and apprentices or trainees, individually tailored to your needs. We provide a wide range of assistance options to help both on and off the job.

1

A combination of face-to-face, over the phone or online engagements to address needs and concerns of the apprentice/trainee or the employer.

2

A tailored support plan may include mentoring for your apprentice to address and advise on any work performance issues, or personal issues affecting their performance.

3

Assistance with life issues including effective communication and relationship help, budgeting, paying bills and saving goals (e.g. saving for that new car!)

4

Advice and linkages to broader referral services (e.g. counselling and accommodation assistance) for apprentices or trainees experiencing personal issues or addictions.

BUSY At Work's
In-Training Support is

EMPLOYER SUPPORT

For a variety of reasons, employers may find it difficult to train, support, and promote the growth of employees. This might range from dealing with a heavy workload to having difficulty managing and relating to younger generations.

The goal of In-Training Support is to identify and resolve any issues before they have a negative impact on your apprentice, your company, or other employees. And, when you require a mentor, we are only a phone call away.

Mentors can help you manage your apprentice or trainee by offering support for both on-the-job issues and personal problems (e.g., financial, housing, etc.) that may be influencing their performance at work. A mentor can increase worker retention rates while freeing up your time to concentrate on the business. At no cost to your business, In-Training Support has assisted hundreds of companies—just like yours—to keep their apprentice or trainee on track for successful completion of their qualification.
